“The Official Voice of Municipal Government in Indiana”

IACT Endorses ETC ProLiance Energy

City and Town Leaders to have new Savings Option

The Indiana Association of Cities and Towns (IACT) today announced an endorsed program relationship with ETC ProLiance Energy. The program represents another IACT effort to reduce costs and add more fiscal predictability for Hoosier cities and towns.

Through this partnership, Indiana municipalities can take advantage of the opportunity to decrease their natural gas expenditures by securing their natural gas supply from ETC ProLiance Energy, a full-service natural gas marketing company headquartered in Indianapolis. The company purchases natural gas from a variety of supply basins and transports the gas through different pipelines to provide competitively-priced natural gas to its customers.

“ETC ProLiance Energy is excited to form this partnership with IACT. We look forward to providing Indiana municipalities with the opportunity to decrease their natural gas expenditures. Historical savings on natural gas costs have ranged from 15 to 20 percent, based on the utility in which the municipality is located,” Carmen Andreoli at ETC ProLiance Energy said.

IACT Executive Director and CEO Matt Greller said, “IACT members are aggressively seeking new, creative ways to generate operational efficiencies and cost savings. We are thrilled to work with ETC ProLiance Energy to provide municipalities with this new purchasing option.”
